

What is Early Help?

Name of practitioner who has completed the Early Help Assessment with you:

Place of work:

Contact number:

The aim of Early Help is to help you as soon as a need arises or a problem is identified to prevent things getting worse, by providing support as early as possible. This can be at any point in your child's life, from conception, through early childhood and into adolescence. It can also prevent further problems arising by working with you to build the strength and resilience within your family and enable you and your family to find solutions in the future.

Early Help may be provided by one agency or a group of agencies who will work together with you and your family to help resolve any difficulties you are facing.

You will always be given a copy of your early help assessment. If you move into a new area you can, if you want, share the assessment with any new professional that becomes involved with you and your family.
